All about our IOSH face-to-face training courses

Our range of IOSH courses delivered via face-to-face classroom have been designed for managers, supervisors and workers in any sector or organisation, anywhere in the world.

Learners will participate in face-to-face training via a traditional classroom approach at their work's premises, where the key principles of the course will be discussed. Our IOSH qualified trainers will provide learners with the relevant IOSH materials and will guide learners through each module of the course, ensuring individuals are fully prepared for the end of course assessment. Depending on the course, the duration and assessment will vary.

IOSH Managing Safely

🕒 Three days

Day one focuses on risk management.

Day two looks at the legalities as well as the Plan - Do - Check - Act health and safety management system.

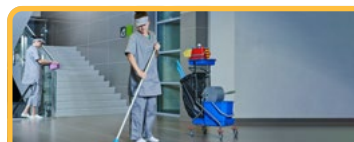

Day three continues with hazards, control measures and performance measures.

The benefits of face-to-face classroom

Training at your premises is time-efficient and convenient, with no need to waste time travelling to training centres.

Allows learners to train alongside their colleagues in a familiar environment.

Companies can build in their own specific policies, procedures, leadership messaging and real-life example cases to create a unique client-centric course.

Each learning session builds on the previous one and includes a range of activities to test the learners' understanding of the points covered.

Learners will benefit from our trainer's experience and extensive knowledge, as they are supported and assisted throughout the course.

Learners will have access to IOSH materials and workbooks with the option to access our eLearning platform and highly interactive online content.

Face-to-face training can be a great team building opportunity for a company as it allows individuals to collaborate, sharing their knowledge and experience with each other.

Face-to-face training can increase the depth and quality of interaction as the trainer can see and interpret learners' body language and facial expressions.

Why face-to-face classroom?

“We’ve been really impressed with the training delivered by Kate Gardner in particular. People are sometimes a bit reluctant when it comes to health and safety training, but when they know Kate’s going to be delivering the course, they’re really keen to take part.”

Luke Huggins, Construction Safety

“Really good interactive discussions with real life examples which made the learning feel real and relevant. The course moved at a good pace throughout with a friendly atmosphere and good classroom size.”

Joe Robinson, Landsec

“The course was well presented, and the tutor was highly keen and helpful. The course certainly helped to open a wide perspective of the safety standards.”

Rahul Pakkath Rajan, Fugro

“I really enjoyed that course, it was interactive and very interesting. I have gained a greater understanding of my health and safety responsibilities as a manager. The sometime boring task of doing a risk assessment now seems a lot more pleasant and easier.”

Oleg Lazaroc, World of Books

“Jamie was absolutely fantastic! He is very well informed and delivers his knowledge in a very informative way. He knows how to keep people’s attention. The training was very valuable and has improved my health and safety knowledge.”

Magdalena Makowska, Savills

“This IOSH course widened my knowledge and understanding of health and safety and will assist me in my current role.”

Emma Langstaff, We are MAPP
